A rumor reached Brooklyn this mornwas supposed to be dead, was alive and well in the City of Churches.

The rumor was set affoat by a despatch from Farmingdale saving that a young man named Frank P. McDermott, of

Stevens and McDermott had been close friends, and according to this despatch A few old trunks and boxes were found the embezzler had been employed for

The case is somewhat mysterious. Stevens was employed by French & Co. as bookkeeper. In the early part of last year the firm made the discovery that he was short in his accounts, and an investi-gation placed the shortage at something like $4,000.

He was arrested and was shortly after-wards convicted and sentenced in June, 1889, to two years and six months' im-

The story spread about the country was so plausible that everybody believed it, and it is said that the authorities were taken in by it to such an extent that no sleps were ever taken in the case. The judges felt convinced of Steven's death, and the writ of error was never considered.

Little could be learned of the matter in Brooklyn to-day. The story telegraped to the effect that Stevens is or was a singer in Talmage's Tabernacle is fiatly contradicted, and in fact it is said that nothing whatever is known concerning him.

reporter this morning, and asked what he knew of Stevens.

"I know nothing whatever about the man," said Mr. Wood. "He is not a singer in our church for the reason that we have no singers, all the music being furnished by an organ, cornet and congregational singing. I never heard of the man and sin sure that he is not in any way connected with the church."

The despatch from Freehold stated that Stevens was living at 804 De Kalb avenue.

The reporter then called at that address but could get no information.

availed of as a pretext for squeezing more money out of the people of the city. Reports are spread about almost daily that there is not sufficient ice in the city to supply the demand for more than two days. Last Saturday it was deliberately and falsely alleged that we were in real danger of an ice famine.

Perhaps we would be if there were no ico in Maine, but last Winter's crop in that Sinte was the largest ever harvested, and it is being shipped to the city in quantities large enough to supply every formed the autopsy on every one of the

One of the officers of the Knickerbocker Company says that there is not the slightest prospect of any lower prices through the hot season than those of the present, although he admits that the supplies in Maine are sufficient to keep the Companies roing till next Winter.

In other words, while the companies are able to procure plenty of ice to serve their contract customers in town at the rate of $2.50 a ton, they are making up this loss by charging the poor people of the city all the way from $20 to $25 a ton.

The contract customers of the Trust are the big hotels and restaurants and the butchers and fish dealers. Most of them made three-year contracts two years ago It is to the interest of the ice mononolisis to create the impression that there is a great scarcity of ice in the city in order to justify the imposition of the present rates.
